

New Health Officer on Job

He was happy being examined by new assistant medical health officer, Dr. J. J. Glynn, but then seven-month-old Steve Alan Olson of 509 Selkirk shed tears when it came to having picture taken. Dr. Glynn held his first well-baby clinic in Victoria-Esquamalt health district yesterday, at Victoria West centre. He will work almost exclusively as health officer for schools and well-baby clinics. Irish-born, 35 years old, Dr. Glynn served from 1952 until recently in Canadian Army. — (Colonist photo by Bud Kinsman.)

PNE Pickpockets Get Bumper Haul

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police said Tuesday five men have been robbed of a total of $1,683 by pickpockets in issuing a warning to visitors to the Pacific National Exhibition to guard against similar thefts. In each case the victim reported someone bumped or brushed him shortly before he noticed his wallet missing, police said.

Experts Agree:

Can't Hide Tests

GENEVA (AP)—Scientists from both sides of the Iron Curtain agreed Tuesday on a technical system to spot violations if governments ban the testing of nuclear weapons. The system could include earth satellites.

The 16 scientists from eight nations did not attempt to reach political decisions on whether there should be an agreement to halt atomic and H-bomb tests.

Details of the agreement reached in seven weeks of secret talks, will not be disclosed until they have been studied by the governments represented here.

The agreement was announced as Britain warned that a wide area around Christmas Island in the Pacific would again be a danger area beginning today because of a new series of nuclear tests.

They're Swimmers Now!

Yesterday was the big day for sisters Leslie Robertson, 10, and Mildred, 11, of 5560 Old West Road. They officially became swimmers when Colonist publisher Seth Halton, centre, presented them with swim certificates for performance in Colonist free learn-to-swim classes. Last week of testing has started, and nearly 2,000 youngsters in Greater Victoria, Duncan and on Salt Spring Island have learned to swim at the classes this summer. — (Colonist photo by Jim Ryan.)

CBC Satisfied With New Act Despite Rivalry

From CP and UPI Reports

OTTAWA—CBC sources indicated last night the publicly owned TV and radio network is "generally satisfied" with the new Canadian Broadcasting Act introduced in Commons earlier in the day, despite apparent provision for rival networks.

Legislation, which sets up an independent Board of Broadcast Governors to "take over" CBC regulatory powers over CBC and private stations, allows the board to "grant permission to any person to operate a network of broadcasting stations."

It was not definite if this would permit a full-time, privately owned TV or radio network in opposition to CBC. Presumably, this decision would be left to the new board.

It will include three full-time members appointed for seven years and 12 part-time members named for three years.

For CBC, the act replaces present administration with new officers—a president, vice-president and nine directors, to be named by parliament shortly.

New financial plan for CBC sets out a five-year budget, starting some time next year. CBC then may spend unlimited sums on programs and up to $100,000 on property without cabinet approval as long as it stays within the budget.

In addition to full control of broadcasting, the new board was specifically instructed in the act to ensure greater use of Canadian talent, emphasize program of public interest, deny TV or radio licences to persons who are not Canadian citizens and suspend for up to three months licences of stations which break regulations.

Until yesterday the Arab states were understood to be favoring the Soviet proposal, which calls for a withdrawal of British and American troops from Lebanon as a necessary prelude for any intervention by the UN.

Two resolutions aimed at eventual solution of the strategic area's problem already are before the assembly—one from the Soviet Union and the other from a group of smaller "middle powers" led by Norway and Canada.

ALLABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

THEY'VE had the automatic pilot for some time. Now science has produced the completely automatic air navigator.

This British-made gadget is called the Marconi Doppler Navigator. It is a new development.

It is the world's first electronic navigational aid which is completely independent of ground stations.

According to United Kingdom Information Service, "it can present, on a combined control and indicator unit, direct information on distance-to-go along a stage of a pre-determined flight plan; distance to go along a composite desired track to reach a destination; direction and speed of wind, ground speed and drift angle."

"Other information includes a left-right indication for steering the aircraft on a desired rhumb line or great circle track; distance to destination and a visual indication when the end of a navigational stage has been reached."

It can be built into an autopilot system. And, one might add, it doesn't drink too much beer on the night before it goes flying. It does not whistle into the intercommunication system, lose all its pencils and navigational instruments, or add the magnetic variation instead of subtracting it, human errors to which flesh-and-blood navigators were sometimes liable.

The automatic pilot, familiarly known as George, itself seemed marvellous enough in its day.

Many a navigator of middle-sized aircraft, I am told, can remember the panicky feeling that came over him the first time his pilot appeared in the navigator's compartment.

It was almost as though a man were dozing in the back seat of a car and he awoke with a start to find that the driver was sitting beside him, and that nobody was at the wheel.

Not quite the same, though. In the case of the aircraft, George was driving.

A navigating machine of sorts was in use in some areas during the war. But it wasn't as versatile and as self-regulating as the new one appears to be.

Many former air force navigators will wish heartily that the new machine had been invented a few years earlier.

With an automatic pilot, an automatic navigator, mechanical wireless operator air gunner and electronic gunners when needed, members of the crew could have acquired companions from the Women's Auxiliary Air Force or RCAF (WD) and had an agreeable day or night on the town, while their aircraft found its way there and back by itself.

At Bloodless Bullfight

Plasma All Ready In Case of Blood

LINDSAY, Ont. (C.P.)—A doctor and two nurses—complete with ambulance and plasma bottles—have been hired to attend Lindsay's bloodless bullfight in case they aren't so bloodless.

And if they are unable to cope with an emergency, stretcher-bearing first-aid men have been told to lend a hand.

These precautions, taken by the sponsoring Chamber of Commerce for the Friday night opening of the fights, reflect the attitude of most townspeople to the event.

Meanwhile, the six imported Mexican fighting bulls are being hidden in a secret corral against the possibility of sabotage.

After-Hours Plan for Adults

Who Wants Recreation In Saanich Schools?

People and organizations interested in taking part in the adult recreation planned by Coun. Charles Nelles for Saanich residents should come forward, he said, last night.

First mention of the recreation scheme came Monday night at a meeting of the Greater Victoria school board when Coun. Nelles suggested the move to make fuller use of the facilities.

The board granted permission for Saanich parks supervisor A. E. Richman to discuss the matter further with school board officials.

"Now we want to know who are the people who want to use these wonderful school auditoriums for badminton, basketball, square dancing or amateur theatricals," Coun. Nelles said last night.

He said anyone interested in learning more about the scheme, anyone with suggestions or any adult activity or organization which would like to take part in the scheme should write to the parks committee, care of Saanich municipal hall.

City's Credit Bureau Sweeps Award Field

Credit Bureau of Victoria Ltd. was presented with two awards covering international collection and credit reporting services for cities in the 50,000 to 100,000 population bracket, at a recent conference in Los Angeles of the Associated Credit Bureaus of America.

The association represents 3,000 credit bureaus.

In addition, the National Retail Credit Association, representing some 30,000 credit granting firms, presented the local credit bureau with an award for outstanding membership performance through the local unit, the Credit Granters' Association of Victoria.

Similar awards were made in 1957 to the local credit bureau and this is the first time since 1912 that one credit bureau won all three awards in two consecutive years.

Timber Saved

Brush Fires Out In Nick of Time

Two brush fires were prevented from becoming serious forest fires yesterday by quick action of Langford and Saanich firemen.

Langford volunteers dumped up to 20,000 gallons of water on a blaze in a wooded area in the 3,000-block Happy Valley Road. The fire covered only about a quarter-acre, but endangered 200 acres of timber on the side of Triangle Mountain.

"If it had gone another 100 feet, we would have been out for another 10 days," said William Okell, volunteer fireman. "It would have been as big as the Goldstream fire."

The fire in Saanich covered about two acres of a bush-covered hill top between Sparrow and Coldecote Road.

Firemen had to lay 1,000 feet of hose up a steep slope to the near side of the fire and an additional 1,000 feet to surround it.

New Broadcasting Set-Up

THE new broadcasting bill introduced in the House of Commons yesterday appears to be a comprehensive approach to needed reforms in the existing means of control. It follows the recommendation of the Fowler commission in the creation of a 15-member board of governors — responsible to Parliament and independent of the CBC. It opens the door to fuller and more independent use of broadcasting by private enterprise, within the limits of supervision. It preserves substantially unaltered the developed prerogatives of the CBC, under its own board of governors, with an equal right of approach to Parliament and more budgetary assistance.

While much will depend on the ability and personnel of the new controlling body to be set up and the governing board's fairness and firmness in the discharge of nation-wide control functions, the proposed enactment—which will repeal the present broadcasting measure but not the Radio Act—should make possible the provision of competent supervision of an expanding medium of communication. The financial terms of the change have not yet been put before the Commons, but it seems implicit in the government's statements so far that the CBC is to be put on a more satisfactory financial footing. At the same time it will lose some of its powers of over-all regulation and control of broadcasting.

Some opposition members in the House, in advance of official explanation of the ramifications of the new plan, have been skeptical of its results. While that may be precipitate, it does emphasize the fact that no plan on paper means much until it is applied. It is in day-to-day working out of the new scheme that its benefits and faults will show up. In its objective, however, there can be little quarrel with the proposed measure. The time is past due for the separation of national and private broadcasting; for the abandonment of unnecessarily restrictive practices; and concurrently for recognition both in broadcasting and television of the role the CBC may be expected to fill as time goes on.

So far the broadcasting bill is only in its resolution and introductory stages. Its terms and its full meaning will be laid before Parliament, for whatever change or improvement the Commons in committee may be able to suggest. The latter portion of the measure, dealing with the separate existence of the CBC, seems to suggest a material increase in expense in one to five-year plans now to be invited. On the other hand, there are few individuals in Canada who would willingly choose to have this nation stand still or to regress in the development of so important a phase of national life.

The Public Interest

A VITAL concept of the responsibility to the country as a whole shared by management and labor in big industry has been enunciated by the conciliation board appointed to consider the dispute in the steel industry at Hamilton. Though not new, it is one frequently overlooked or repudiated by some of the unions in their demands for higher wages.

The steelworkers' union in its submission to the board took the position that consideration of the factors in dispute should not go beyond the relationship of the steel industry and its employees. The board disagreed; in its view such disputes had to be settled in a larger context, namely, the effect a wage increase would have on the economy of Canada. The majority report said that the view that terms of settlement concerned no one but the parties to the dispute "seems to us to be so narrow as to be almost inadmissible. There is nothing more delicate in a national economy than its wage structure." The board felt obliged to consider the influence the proposed wage increase would have on inflation.

The same principle is applicable, though for somewhat different reasons, to disputes of the type which British Columbia has experienced this year. The recent ferry trouble was typical of disputes in which a strike against an employer becomes a strike against the public. So too are strikes involving essential local services such as power and light, sanitation and so forth. In all such cases there is a third party: the public. It is for this reason that governments sooner or later have to intervene in the interest of public welfare, as the B.C. government did in the case of the Black Ball ferry strike and the Dominion government later to restore CPR service.

It is rarer, however, for conciliators to take account of public welfare in disputes such as that in the steel industry. Too often their purpose appears to be to devise a settlement that management and labor will accept, regardless of the indirect effect it may have on the public. The result is this continuous upward trend in wages and prices which in the final analysis benefit no one at home while seriously damaging Canada's position in markets abroad.

An Historic Figure

A CEREMONY of centennial significance will take place this afternoon when Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross places a wreath on the grave of Amor de Cosmos, and, later, the editor of the Colonist, Mr. Sandham Graves, delivers an address on this historic figure of British Columbia. Today is the 133rd anniversary of the birth of de Cosmos, a native of Nova Scotia who made Victoria his home and became the driving force of the city which grew up around the pioneer fort of this area.

Mr. de Cosmos' place in B.C. history is secure, not simply because he was the second premier of this province but because he championed the democratic principles which led to representative government here and was the strong people's man of his day. The Victoria and B.C. of 1958 owe much to the groundwork he laid a hundred years ago. He is also historic because he founded this newspaper as the voice of free expression, a difficult and notable achievement in 1858, and today's ceremony takes note also of the centenary which the Colonist will celebrate later this year. In Amor de Cosmos therefore no fewer than three centennial occasions are joined this afternoon.

It has been an obligation willingly assumed by this newspaper that his grave in Ross Bay cemetery, associated with so much local history, should be restored and kept in a commemorative state. In a sense his resting place will be rededicated, and it will serve as a perpetual reminder of the remarkable man who contributed so much to the beginnings of Victoria and British Columbia. Men of his calibre are few and far between, and it is meet that they should not be forgotten but remain in the awareness of succeeding generations.

SEATO Intervention Debated

By K. C. THALER
United Press International

LONDON (UPI) — SEATO, the South East Asia Treaty Organization, has been confronted with a severe challenge that may seriously hamper its freedom of action against Communist subversion in the treaty area.

The challenge has come from SEATO's secretary general, Nai Pote Sarasin, who declared subversive activities the responsibility of a member country's own national forces.

Sarasin, a former provisional prime minister of Thailand who is on an official visit to Australia, was reported from Canberra to have termed political coup a "domestic affair" of the country in which they occur, which could not involve other members.

It appears this interpretation would limit SEATO's right of intervention, for instance, in the event of a Communist-engineered or backed coup in a member country.

The issue has been spotlighted by the recent Baghdad coup which confronted the Baghdad Pact nations with the crucial question of whether or not to intervene in Iraq when a rebel regime overthrew the Feisal government.

The Baghdad nations came to the conclusion at a meeting in London a fortnight ago against intervention because the rebel regime was considered to have the support of the people of Iraq and because it was held to be in full control of the country. Also it at once pledged itself to honor existing international commitments.

Sarasin now reportedly holds the view that a political coup in a SEATO member country, in principle, would not involve other members.

Other member nations could not take action unless they were asked by the threatened government. Even then, they would not be obliged to go to its aid under the treaty arrangements, he stated, according to the reports.

Some observers argued that if, for example, a Communist coup should remove the ruling regime in a SEATO country by a lightning stroke, the "threatened government" would no longer have a chance to invoke SEATO assistance.

There would be, in this interpretation no room for SEATO intervention, even if the ousted regime could have invoked it.

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

YOU CANNOT get away from size. Some men are big and some are not so big, and, as Kipling put it of something else altogether, never the twain shall meet. Not usually, at least, on a football field.

They did meet on a stadium in Vancouver last Saturday, when a certain footballer presumably came into contact with his bigger kin. He is by all reports a mere 160 pounds in weight and this is the wonder of the matter.

Canadian football, that exercise which invites gladiators of herculean proportions, is not generally kind to small-sized men. The fact that so comparatively diminutive a person can take part in this rugged game has been cause for quoted surprise. Every time he plays, assuming he continues to stand the gaff, his weight will be cited as a special virtue in itself.

The drift to size which has come over this game is perhaps logical enough, even if it can be deplored. Each team wants to win and one way of winning is to overpower an opponent by sheer weight and physical strength. This is not all there is to Canadian football, by no means, but it is a dominant factor nevertheless. Were it not so there would not be so much beef on the hoof, as it were and without prejudice, being imported in football uniforms.

I daresay some yardstick of the sort obtained in former days, for example among the knights who in tournament play vied for the favor of some fair lady. The heavier the rider the more difficult it would be to unseat him. For all of the picturesque drama of the jousts of old, however, few of them would stand a chance with Canadian footballers. In reality they were, as you may judge by measuring the next suit of armour you see in a museum, small men or of only medium size and bulk.

Yet apparently they put up a good show, else historians spin us some tall tales. Footballers of medium weight could be no whit behind. They could put up equally as exhilarating a game as do their bigger, heavier brothers. The craze for bigness has simply shut out of competition a whole range of more ordinary sized males. Teams with an average weight of, say, 175 pounds, or even 150 pounds, should be able to please the customers quite as ably as teams which average 200 pounds and more.

They would have to be fairly evenly matched, admittedly, and the balance would be upset did one team unexpectedly appear as behemoths in buckskin, with the weight factor tilted exceedingly in their favor. A limitation of this kind is not practicable, of course, and it also would shut out a range of desirable competitors. Big men have their claims too. But the over-emphasis on bulk which is so marked does make Canadian football an almost exclusive realm for the over-sized man.

Basketball is another game which in the postwar years has run to outsize. Here weight is not the criterion so much as height, and if one is six-feet-six or bordering on seven feet one is apt to be co-opted for play even if one has no natural aptitude for it.

It must be disconcerting for a young man to have a decided flair for either or both games and be bypassed only because nature has been moderate in its dispensation instead of generous beyond the norm. Perhaps someone should start a little-league of Canadian football, with, perhaps, a Blue Cup as the prize. Grey is an unexciting color anyway.

Fruitless Debate

How to Define Indirect Aggression?

By ALFRED H. GREENBERG, from United Nations

DISCUSSION of the problem of indirect aggression, whether considered at the Security Council or in a summit meeting, is apt to be a fruitless affair, delegates at United Nations headquarters agree.

U.S. Secretary of State Dulles says a discussion of indirect aggression "would tend to stabilize the political situation" in the Middle East. But, off the record, most diplomats here are pessimistic about the outcome of such talks.

"The Sixth (Legal) Committee of the General Assembly," one official noted, "has been trying unsuccessfully for years to arrive at a definition of direct aggression. Why should we now expect agreement on indirect aggression — certainly far more difficult to define?"

The subject is not a new one at the U.N. As U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge recently recalled, the "essentials of peace" resolution adopted in 1949 called on all countries to refrain from acts aimed at impairing the independence of any state, or at fomenting civil strife.

The "peace through deeds" resolution of 1950 also condemned intervention by one state in the internal affairs of another "for the purpose of changing its legally established government."

But there never has been agreement on how to determine when such interference has taken place. Both the United States and the Soviet Union have been far from consistent in this respect, altering their arguments according to the nature of the government threatened.

For example, one of the very first complaints placed before the Security Council, back in 1946, was a Soviet charge that the presence of British troops in Greece constituted interference in that country's internal affairs.

This charge was rejected by the council. Subsequently Greece complained that her Balkan neighbors were doing the interfering, aiding and supplying the Greek communist rebels. Though it was decided unanimously to send a commission of investigation, no agreement was reached on the facts. The Soviets continued to insist that the dispute was simply an internal matter "between Greeks and Greeks."

On the other hand, when the left-wing government of Guatemala complained to the Security Council in June, 1954, that Honduras and Nicaragua were interfering in its affairs, Ambassador Lodge argued that the situation "does not involve aggression, but is a revolt of Guatemalans against Guatemalans," a view which on this occasion, of course, the Soviets attacked sharply.

Again, the arguments were reversed when the Soviets intervened in Hungary. They claimed they did so at the invitation of the Hungarian government — though, of course, the Soviets had overthrown the legal Hungarian government of Imre Nagy.

But the revolt that brought Nagy to power was regarded by the Russians as "interference" from the West. The "evidence" they cited consisted of Western radio broadcasts, leaflets, and other expressions of hostility to the regime of Nagy's Moscow-line predecessor.

In this case a UN special committee established that the revolt was a case of spontaneous national uprising of Hungarians against Hungarians; but again, the Russians never accepted this interpretation.

The Lebanese situation is much like that of Greece. The Russians claim that U.S. troops are interfering and that the revolt in Lebanon is purely an internal affair. The U.S., on the other hand, regards the revolt as a case of aggression, aided and encouraged from abroad.

Thus the record casts considerable doubt on the likelihood of any definition of indirect aggression being acceptable to both the United States and the Soviet Union. Both have interfered in the internal affairs of other countries when it suited their purposes — and they could get away with it.

The consensus here is that no spelling-out of the term "indirect aggression" will even be attempted at the forthcoming meetings, other than in the specific context of Lebanese charges against the United Arab Republic.

OF GREGORY CLARK

TO have come of age, as we old ones did, in the heyday of Rudyard Kipling is a special burden we are carrying in these confusing times. Most of you are too young to have been thoroughly soaked in the good old brine of the vintage years.

Elephants a-pillin' teak. Paddies chunkin' from Rangoon to Mandalay. Fuzzywuzzies presuming to be men; and now and again, like Gungadin, achieving immortality by giving one of us a drink when we were shot through the belly by some sub-human from behind an Afghan boulder.

We were tough men in 1900, by the sound of us.

And the sounds we made must be amusing — reading, now, to the Arabs, Hindus, Chinese, and numerous other nationalities we employed much as the circus ring-master employs his assorted live stock, but who now sit as our peers in council, and take some fun out of frustrating our noblest tricks. We wave a baton now, instead of a whip, as though all the world were an orchestra.

A Persian friend of mine has a wonderful Kipling library, complete to the last short story.

He says it gives him great solace. But as one who swelled into young manhood to the pomp and circumstance of Barrack Room Ballads, I can only envy him his present sense of good humor.

Plotting the Skyrways

Forecasts for High Levels

By THOMAS HENRY, Science Editor, North American Newspaper Alliance

A COMPLETELY revised and modernized air weather service is being developed by the U.S. Weather Bureau in Washington. It is planned to be in full operation by 1963 and will involve far-reaching changes in the entire field of weather observation and prediction.

Faster, bigger and higher-flying planes are making current weather analysis obsolete. Trans-Atlantic jet-turbine service for passengers, scheduled to begin in November, will add to the problems.

"It is neither practical nor economically sound," says Dr. F. W. Reichelderfer, chief of the bureau, "to attempt to meet the increasing weather reporting and forecasting needs of the nation's aviation activities by methods in general use today."

Although intended primarily for civilian aviation, he says, the new methods and machinery will be of about equal value to the military and will have far-reaching repercussions on weather forecasting in general.

In the next few years, weather bureau officials say, the cruising levels of civilian aircraft will be at altitudes of 40,000 feet or more, about twice the present levels. This will double the portion of the earth's atmosphere for which accurate forecasts are needed.

To meet the need for forecasts of wind and other weather conditions over the multiplicity of routes covering the United States and for routes covering Asia, Europe and South America, special high altitude forecasting centres are planned according to a prospectus for the new system.

"These are to utilize to the fullest possible extent numerical prediction systems. Finished forecasts for selected levels between 20,000 and 40,000 feet will be in pictorial chart form and will be disseminated to user groups via an aviation weather radio facsimile network.

Constant warnings of potentially dangerous weather will be flashed to pilots in flight. This warning system actually has been in operation for a year but has been quite inadequate.

"Under existing conditions," says a weather bureau report, "potentially hazardous weather at times is not detected because of lack of a sufficient staff to analyze the reports in detail. Now this warning system will be intensified. Upper air observations will be made up to levels of 100,000 feet on a regular basis. Equipment to be delivered by next July will make possible a network with precise instrumentation at all but eight upper air stations in the United States and Alaska."

In addition television briefing of flight crews will be started at designated international briefing points. Transmitting equipment will be automatic so that following the first spoken briefing and showing of prepared charts these will be repeated continuously until there is a change in conditions.

Automatic pictorial displays of flying weather will be installed at all major airports. These will display by symbols, color codes or other means currently reported weather information over a wide area, with the information being changed automatically as new teletypewriter weather reports are received.

Fun, Fact and Fiction

The passenger leaned out of the taxi window. "What on earth are you doing?" he shouted to the driver. "I asked you to drive me from Victoria to Leicester Square and this is the fourth time we've passed St. Paul's."

"Sorry, sir," replied the driver. "I thought you were an American."

Generals in the army of Red China, says a news item, work alongside privates in picking up cigarette butts. Regardless of rank, however, who ever sees it first gets to smoke it.

A prospective father-in-law was interviewing his daughter's young man. "And what are your prospects?" he inquired. "Oh, pretty good — unless your daughter's been misleading me," was the reply.

Letters to the Editor

Canine Devotion

On Aug. 11, 1956, the Colonist ran a most delightful picture and story about a California boxer dog and her Qualicum Beach gentleman friend ("Victoria" and "Frisby"). I have treasured and been vastly amused by this story and the beautiful picture of "Victoria".

I thought you might be interested to know that again this summer "Victoria" is staying at the Qualicum Beach Hotel and that "Frisby" is again her constant and devoted companion.

When you might see the two dogs romping on the golf links or the beach or riding in "Victoria's" car, or just sitting quietly together at the hotel—it all makes a picture to enthrall dog-lovers. Who could doubt that dogs remember?

Mainland Link

I am delighted to see Mr. Gibson's letter re "Bridge to the Mainland" and Mrs. Thomson's "Antiquated System".

A few devoted souls have been advocating something of this kind long before we had the ferry strike, but have had little or no success in getting it before the public, as there has been no publicity.

We need a direct link to the mainland, and we are entitled to it. As long as 1912-1913 a rail route was being planned and the grade almost completed to Alberni for a direct route via Seymour Narrows to the mainland. This was the Canadian National (Northern). The war stopped this and it has never been renewed. But the fact remains that the terms of union are not being met by the federal government, that these terms are still law, and should be put into operation, and one of these terms was a direct link to the mainland.

It need not necessarily be a completely "free" link, but a toll bridge, tunnel or whatever is most practicable would surely bring a great resurgence of activity to this neglected but wealthy island.

It is not a question of whether men have the right to strike or not; I do not feel that this should enter into the question at all. It is directly a question of to what we are entitled, and why in this day of great engineering feats are we not getting it?

(MRS.) MABEL H. HAMILTON.

Lightened Heart

What a fine thing it is to read in today's Colonist (Aug. 14), what Capt. W. Gregory has to tell us about the children of the Protestant Orphanage.

It brought to mind the words of the late and much beloved R. G. Ingersoll when he said: "Love is the magician that changes worthless things to joy. Love is the only bow on life's dark cloud. It is the morning and the evening star. It is the mother of art, inspirer of poet, patriot, and philosophy. It is the light of every heart. It was the first to dream of immortality. The laugh of a child will make the holiest day more sacred still—the laugh that fills the eyes with light and every heart with joy."

All credit must go to those in charge. Thank you Capt. Gregory for your letter.

Asinine Statements

I see Mr. Argue on behalf of the CCF at Ottawa strongly objects to the use of arbitration in the ferry dispute. The only conclusion we can come to is either that the CCF wants labor's demands (no matter how high) satisfied, or the ferries cease to run.

What possible alternative is there if labor can demand anything it chooses with no recourse allowed on behalf of the consumer?

This situation applies to all activity, most of which is unionized. Are the demands of labor to be met without question year after year or are sameness and stability to be established ever?

What right has unionized labor to "demand" to a point where business cannot carry on and consumers are constantly victimized by high costs of everything?

Union statements that higher wages do not increase prices are asinine, and yet they keep on saying so.

Missing Boy Believed Off Boating

Residents of Greater Victoria, Saanich Peninsula and even the Gulf Islands are asked by Saanich police for help in finding a 16-year-old boy who has been missing from his home since Aug. 10.

Edward Neil Parratt, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Parratt, left his home at about midnight that day. With him went his brick-red Argyle bicycle and the family's 12-foot plywood boat, powered by a 7½-horsepower Scott-Atwater motor.

Police and his family think young Edward may be cruising among the islands, with his bicycle aboard the boat.

Edward, who is a slim five feet, seven inches tall, weighs 122 pounds, has blue eyes and wavy brown hair. It is believed he is wearing blue jeans, a black shirt, black cardigan with broad red stripes across the chest, and blue canvas shoes.

The boat is yellow with dark green trim outside, green inside. Anyone with information is asked to telephone the boy's home, 7-2749, or Saanich police, 9-1616.

Puget Sound Dispute

Seiners Strike

SEATTLE (AP)—Some 2,000 Puget Sound purse seine fishermen, members of Local 3 of the Fishermen and Allied Workers Union, went out on strike yesterday morning, 21 hours earlier than they had threatened to walk off their jobs.

Joe Jurich, secretary-treasurer of Local 3, said the union had placed pickets at eight major Puget Sound salmon canneries and he said the pickets were receiving "excellent support."

The strike was apparently advanced to insure that the salmon canning industry would be closed down right at season's opening. The walkout was expected to idle 1,000 cannery workers, 200 tendermen and 1,000 gillnet and reefnet fishermen.

The purse seiners are asking that canneries pay 31 cents a pound for salmon instead of the current 25 cents. The canneries contend that federal law forbids them to bargain with the union or even meet among themselves to set prices for salmon.

Roughies Refuse Offer To Replace Ailing Star

REGINA — Quarterback Frank Tripucka has suffered a shoulder separation and may be lost to Saskatchewan Roughriders for the season, club manager Ken Preston said Tuesday.
 "He'll be out definitely for a month—possibly for the season, depending on how it comes along," Preston said.

Here are the

about exchanging your
 3% wartime Victory Bonds

- What is the Canada Conversion Loan of 1958?
 It is an offer to replace all unmatured 3% wartime Victory Bonds with new 25-year 4½% Canada Conversion Bonds. (Other bonds of shorter term, bearing interest rates of 4¼%, 3¾% and 3% are also available.)
- Why is the Government making this conversion offer?
 In order to reorganize the national debt on a longer term basis and thus reduce the volume of Government refinancing over the next few years. There is widespread public and business agreement that this is a sensible idea and will help protect the soundness of the Canadian dollar.
- What interest will I receive on the new bonds?
 On the 25-year bonds the interest rate is 4½%—this is 50% greater than the old Victory Bond rate. The increase on the 14-year and the 7-year bonds is also substantial.
- As a Victory Bond holder, will I be required to make any additional payment?
 No. On the contrary, you will receive an immediate cash adjustment.
- Do I have to convert my Victory Bonds?
 You may, if you wish, hold your Victory Bonds until maturity and on the due date you will be paid their full face value. The Conversion Loan offer is open only to Victory Bond holders; and the "right" to convert gives Victory Bonds a special value until the offer expires. This is because there are many people trying to buy them in order to invest in the new bonds.
- What will be the total of my cash adjustment?
 It will depend on the type of exchange. For example, a $500 8th Victory Bond exchanged for a $500 Conversion Bond paying 4½% will give you $8.75 in cash immediately. This includes earned interest.
- Does this offer apply to Canada Savings Bonds and other Government of Canada Bonds?
 No. This offer is limited to unmatured wartime Victory Loan Bonds only.
- What steps should I take if I am away from home on vacation and wish to take advantage of this offer?
 You should write immediately to your bank, investment dealer, stockbroker, trust or loan company, requesting literature and application forms.
- Does it matter that the Victory Bond I hold is very small?
 Every holder of a Victory Bond, even though the amount held may be only $50, should take advantage of this offer. It is in his best interests as well as in the best interests of Canada.
- How long is this offer open?
 Until September 15, 1958, but it is to your advantage to convert as quickly as possible and have the benefit of the immediate cash adjustment.
- Where can I exchange my Victory Bonds?
 At any bank, investment dealer, trust or loan company, or through your stockbroker.

Fag-Flickers Face RCMP Crackdown

RCMP on Vancouver Island, especially in the Colwood district, will start cracking down today on persons who throw burning cigarettes or matches from their cars.

It could cost a fine of between $25 and $300. Also under the Forest Act, if the flaming matter starts a fire, the costs of extinguishing the blaze can be charged to the individual who tossed it.

Because of the forest hazard, RCMP have been asked by the B.C. Forest Service to crack down on persons leaving burning cigarette butts or matches from their cars.

Of eight fires reported recently in the Vancouver Island district, six are on Vancouver Island and blamed entirely on human carelessness.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own homes without any discomfort or inconvenience. In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations. Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place. And most amazing of all—the improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months! In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoid conditions, some of over 10 to 20 years standing. All this, without the use of narcotics, anaesthetics, strapping or any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous research institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body. This new healing substance is offered in supporting or anti-inflammatory form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment, with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

In Basutoland, at the other end of Africa 22 natives recently were hanged for medicine murders.

In South Africa, partly, mid-dieged Mr. Khotso Sthunisa went to town with a suitcase of and 100 notes for a 1948 Cadillac, money and paid £2,400 in £100s.

Mr. Sthunisa is a leading medicine man of the Transkei tribe—who may or may not use bits of human beings in his "cures."

Witchcraft—which has its devotees among plenty of white men in the black continent—has defied the "civilizers." Much of it is harmless.

But the ritual murder side is not.

In Johannesburg, the witch doctors have formed their own "university" to prevent charlatans, as they term them, from entering the honorable profession.

It is even possible for modern medicine to learn some lessons from this "university." The Dingakas know the ages-old herbal remedies for various African complaints. There are scientific reasons why some of them work.

The theory has even been put forward that the presence of a witch doctor can aid his 20th-century brother, the medical practitioner. For a witch doctor can put an ignorant patient in a receptive psychological mood to make the best of a modern cure.

But witch doctorism leads to murder.

Natives hold a strong belief in the medicine of witch doctors. Medicine from a lion's flesh is regarded as strong. The most powerful of all, however, is made from human flesh.

To obtain this flesh, a murder must be committed. The victim is not suitable, say the medicine men.

Ritual murder is always planned, and the murder always is committed by more than one person.

Parts of the victim's body are cut off while he or she is still alive. The victim must die, however, and if he shows signs of surviving the vivisection he is killed and the body hidden for a time after the murder.

After that, the witch doctors arrange for the remains to be found and for it to appear as if death was accidental.

One requirement is that there shall be a lot of blood. Whether the victim is a man or woman depends on the medicine to be made.

Japan Plans 'Dream Train'

Ten-coach "dream train" is scheduled to make the 312-mile run from Tokyo to Osaka at an average speed of 100 miles an hour, which will make it the fastest regularly scheduled train in the world. It's on the drawing boards of a Japanese railway company and may be in service by 1958.

Advisory Group Still Sought

Holidays Hamper Start Of City Color Campaign

The vacation season has temporarily slowed down plans to form a "color" committee of experts to advise city property owners on what hues to paint their buildings.

Sam Lane, chairman of the tourist trade group of the Chamber of Commerce, said last night some of the experts he wanted to invite to join the committee were out of town and he was marking time until they returned.

The committee will include town planning experts, architects and interior decorators if

Mr. Lane can persuade them to mitter could advise property owners interested.

"I am not concerning myself too much about the inside color schemes of buildings," Mr. Lane said, "but no doubt the com-

Police Give 'Bomb' Blanket Coverage

CHICAGO (AP)—To William Hirth the object looked dangerous.

Six inches long and trailing a long copper wire from one end, the plastic tubing nestled ominously in the hedge in front of Hirth's home.

Hirth called police. Two uniformed policemen sped to the scene. "This is a job for experts," they warned after a hasty glance. "We'll call the bomb squad."

Up came Edward Neville of the bomb detail. He scrutinized the mysterious wiring and then touched it.

It didn't explode. Discarded electric blanket control switches never do.

Sect Will Go, Premier Confident

The Sons of Freedom Douk hehurs will go to Russia, Premier Bennett predicted once again yesterday.

"I believe they will accept... and that they will go," he said. "This is a very fair offer."

The provincial and federal governments have offered to pay the full cost of transporting the radical sect to Russia and to spend an equal amount on the sect's relocation in Siberia.

The premier said there was no limit on how many could go.

Saanich Asking About Lake Boats

City council yesterday considered asking the Capital Region Planning Board for a report on whether and under what conditions Thetis Lake should be used by speedboats. Saanich has already made a similar request to the board with regard to Elk and Beaver Lakes.

Union to Meet Black Ball

In 'First Step'

Black Ball Ferries mediator Craig Munroe has called a meeting of union representatives and management in Vancouver today in the first step toward a settlement of the long-drawn-out dispute.

Mr. Munroe, a New Westminster lawyer, was appointed by Labor Minister Lyle Wick's Monday to act as an industrial inquiry commissioner in an attempt to settle the wage dispute.

For the past two months the Black Ball Ferries have been operating under provincial government control and will continue to be until a settlement has been reached.

World's Biggest Dam Will Tame Zambezi

JOHANNESBURG (NANA)—The world's largest man-made reservoir—it will be five times larger than Lake Mead behind the Hoover Dam on the Colorado—soon will tame the mighty Zambezi River when the Kariba Dam is completed.

The dam will provide power for the world's newest industrial country—the federation of the Rhodesias and Nyasaland—which saw its first white settlers little more than 50 years ago.

All phases of the £113,000,000 ($536,400,000) project will be completed in 1960, exactly 100 years after the explorer-missionary, David Livingstone, shot the rapids at Kariba, where the Zambezi churns and froths between great rocky walls.

The dam will be 180 miles long, with a maximum width of 20 miles and a depth of 300 feet at the deepest point. There will be 3,000 miles of "coastline."

The Kariba Dam will provide power to the copper mines of Northern Rhodesia and the industries of Salisbury and Bulawayo in Southern Rhodesia. On the "copperbelt," where some of the richest ores in the world are found, power shortages have hampered development.

20 YEARS AGO

Hauling road to the power stations of Ndola, Kitwe, Bamcroft and the other copperbelt towns, which were virgin jungle only 20 years ago, has overtaken the carrying capacity of the Rhodesia railways.

Vast areas of natural forest have been denuded to feed the furnaces to provide an inefficient power supply.

But by mid-1960, when it is hoped the official opening will be performed by a member of Britain's (and Central Africa's) Royal Family, this spoliation will come to an end.

12TH BIGGEST SETTLEMENT

The polyglot Kariba community now is the 12th biggest settlement in the federation. Englishmen, Rhodesians, South Africans, Portuguese and Italians work side by side on the dam. The main contractor is Impresit, an Italian firm, with other contractors from Britain, Rhodesia, South Africa and Portugal.

Fifty thousand native Batoka people have had to be resettled 75 miles from their ancient home along the banks of the Zambezi.

$100 for Saanichton Girl

Three City Students Win Scholarships

Three Victoria students and another from Saanichton have been announced as winners of scholarships.

Gordon C. Eckman, 18, whose father, Walter, of 1026 Oliphant, is a B.C. Electric Co. statistician, has been awarded one of five $200 scholarships awarded annually to sons or daughters of B.C.E. employees. Gordon graduated from Victoria High School in June, and plans to enter Victoria College this fall.

A UBC alumni association scholarship for study at Victoria College has been won by Julian Reid of Victoria.

Vancouver Board of Trade has announced that Lynda Holker, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. P. Holker of 2403 Hamiota, was runner up in the annual job study essay competition in B.C. junior and senior high schools.

For her entry, a study of doll-making, the Oak Bay High School Grade 10 student will receive $150 in a presentation Thursday night at the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver.

Winner in the junior high school group in this competition was Sharon Boswick, Saanichton, who will receive a cheque for $100 for her job study on the flower industry.

Bennett Doesn't Care Who Leads Tories

Premier Bennett once stood for the leadership of the B.C. Conservative Party but he doesn't think it matters much who wins the fight at the party's leadership convention in Vancouver early next month.

"The issue in the next election will be between the free-enterprise Social Credit and socialist CCF," he said.

"Do you think the Tories might gain some seats?" he was asked.

"They might replace the Liberals with one member," the premier conceded. "The Liberals are likely to lose both their seats."

How will Social Credit do in the next election, not until 1960 or 1961?

"I think we will gain," said the premier, whose Social Credit party already holds 39 of 52 seats in the legislature.

Hunt Finds Children, Dog Safe

CLAREMONT, Ont. (CP)—Three Claremont children and a dog spent six hours locked in a public outdoor toilet in this village 27 miles northwest of Oshawa Sunday night while more than 500 people searched the countryside for them.

Marilyn Rennie, 8, Suzanne Hockley, 5, Donny Hockley, 2, and Tiffy the dog were on their way to a store when they stopped at the small building.

The door slammed shut and the lock closed. They couldn't get it open.

They were reported missing and provincial police from Whitby led a search for five miles around the village. About midnight Mrs. Elizabeth Fryer heard the frightened children yelling and freed them.

Experts Probe Span Trouble

Highways department officials said yesterday that a thorough study is being made of construction difficulties on a bridge in the Fraser Canyon.

Work on the $2,000,000 Alexandra Bridge was halted because contractors had difficulty in locating adequate footings for it.

"We don't know how serious it is, but engineers are studying the problem," said the official.

"It may not be much."

A full report is expected in about a week.

It's a Mildew Summer

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

One effect of the dry summer we have experienced is a full-fledged attack of mildew on roses, and there are not very many ramblers or climbers which have escaped this fungus infection. Dorothy Perkins seems to be particularly susceptible.

I have been preaching for some time now that the plants should be sprayed or dusted at the first sign of an attack, when the dirty white deposit is first noticed on the foliage.

Sulphur, Karathane or Mildex will clean up mildew in short order, and all the proprietary rose dusts contain a specific against mildew.

I have to admit, though, that it seems to be a bit futile to treat your own plot, only to have the neighbors regard mildew as something of a visitation, like one of Job's troubles. Their untreated plants can re-infect yours as soon as the protective film of Mildex or rose dust has washed away.

I have an idea that a lot of mildew is coming in from the wild snowberry bushes—those shrubs which bear little pink flowers in the spring and waxy white berries thereafter—as almost every snowberry bush I have seen lately is suffering from a shocking dose of mildew. If you have any of these near your plot, give them a squirt while you're doing the roses.

When the family wash becomes mildewed, it is because it was left damp too long before you got around to doing the ironing. With roses and peas, however, mildew seems to be associated more with dryness than with moisture, and perhaps this is why the ramblers and climbers get it first, for a location against a wall is always notoriously dry.

The snowberry bushes, too, are suffering from dryness at the roots when their leaves become coated with this disfiguring deposit.

It has been my experience that lots of water at the roots, a heavy rain and frequent overhead shower baths can prevent an attack from getting started in a bad mildew year. Remember, the plants grow against a wall. Will take twice as much water as the ones growing in the open, and this goes for peas as well as roses and mildew-prone plants.

I realize that wet foliage is supposed to be a contributing factor in the spread of the dreaded Black Spot disease of roses, and overhead showers are frowned on by many of the experts.

Personally, I think that Black Spot comes from soil splashing of the leaves during a heavy watering or rain storm, and a heavy mulch over the soil surface will prevent this splashing. I can't see any harm at all in freshening up the foliage with a misty spray of clear water.

I have even controlled aphids and spittle bugs with plain water, but in this case it is applied as a "forceful" jet rather than a fine mist.

Lack of Leadership

Ike 'Prisoner' of Presidency

By DAYTON MOORE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A new book on President Eisenhower criticizes him as a weak president appearing increasingly to be a prisoner of office and a captive of indecisiveness.

The book, "Eisenhower: Captive Hero," was written by Marquis Childs, correspondent for the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and United Feature Syndicate newspaper columnist who lives here. He has covered the national scene for many years.

"The book bears out its title, 'A critical study of the general and the president.' Its overall tone is unfavorable toward Eisenhower as a president. It says he 'must be put down as a weak president... for his failure to use the powers of the office.' Eisenhower's handling of the Little Rock school integration, recession and post-Sputnik problems were credited with resulting in a national attitude 'of unease and embarrassment even' toward the president and his administration.

"He appeared more and more as a prisoner of his office, a captive of his own indecisiveness, a captive of the hero-worshipping public, a captive of the agonizing dilemma of an era of nuclear annihilation in which man's old savage instincts lay close to the fragile surface of law and order," Childs said.

Eisenhower's prestige "had all but vanished" in Western Europe by early this year because he had "defaulted on his responsibilities," the author charged.

The book went to press before the current Middle East crisis, and the disclosure of presidential aide Sherman Adams' relations with Bernard Goldfine.

Childs said Eisenhower wasn't up to unifying and inspiring the nation in the aftermath of Little Rock and the Sputniks because as "the compromiser, the reconciler," he had never had a strong enough sense of mission.

The author conceded that Eisenhower began his tenure in the White House with a belief he could unify the country.

"Yet in his years in the White House the differences—the differences that transcend the conventional political boundaries—have if anything been accentuated," the book said.

Former treasury secretary George M. Humphrey was credited with being the strongest cabinet member in the first four years of the Eisenhower administration. Humphrey, "more than any individual, except the president himself, set the tone of the Eisenhower era."

Childs blamed the cutback in military spending before the Sputniks on the Humphrey influence, but criticized Eisenhower for approving it. The president also was criticized for waiting five years to put forward a defence reorganization plan.

As head of the Republican party, Eisenhower "lacked both the knowledge and the capacity to do very much" about making it over, the book said.

Embarrassment to U.S.

Hollywood Today

Brigitte's Drawing Shade

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Brigitte Bardot is insisting that she will retire as the world symbol of sex when she reaches her 25th birthday. You can hold your breath. B.B. chalks up her quarter-century in a few months. I guess she was older than 18 when she played the maid in "Helen of Troy." She refers to her notoriety as "bardolatry."

Natalie Trundy, the deb who had featured roles in "The Monte Carlo Story" and "The Careless Years," has "retired" from her career—at least until after she's made her social bow at Christmas in New York. Natalie's suitors include Gen. Douglas MacArthur's son, Arthur, Cuban President Batista's son Jorge, Venezuelan millionaire Rafael Herrera, and young Argentine horse owner, Eduardo Ross.

Inger Stevens, who thought she would never return from Europe, is leaving her native Sweden to star at Paramount with Robert Taylor in "The Hangman."

Elizabeth Taylor takes off to Europe. Can Arthur Loew, Jr. be far behind?

Mary Ure, actress wife of playwright John Osborne, is balking at appearing in the movie version of their stage hit, "Look Back in Anger." "It's said that Mary is peeved over the higher billing to be given Claire Bloom."

Burt Lancaster told them in London, "I'm terribly wealthy." Burt, the ex-circus aerobist, computes his money at $3,500,000.

Barbara Nichols, busy filming "That Certain Woman" in New York with Sophia Loren and Tab Hunter, isn't too busy to dinner-date socialite Lou Stoecklin after dark at the Harwyn Club.

Christine Carere, the cute French pastry in "That Certain Smile," will be seen in "The Bohemians," after "Mardi Gras."

More problems for Ingrid Bergman. With the first stage of the annulment proceedings completed in her "marriage" to Roberto Rossellini, there is talk in the Italian press that she will be prosecuted on a charge of bigamy for marrying the Italian director, while still legally tied to Dr. Peter Lindstrom.

ever, this is not true when he does so at the three level. South's rebid of three clubs was an absolute force; with a lesser hand, he must content himself with rebidding the spades. North's rebid of three hearts was nothing more than his duty; when South elected to bid three spades, it was a statement in effect that he wanted partner to decide between three no-trump and a four spade contract. So North's bid of four spades was not as wild as it would seem.

Indeed, South had no difficulty in making his bid in spite of the bad trump break. Duminy's ace won the diamond opening and declarer discarded a diamond on the second discard heart. He ruffed a diamond to his hand, cashed two top clubs and led a third club which dummy ruffed. A third diamond was trumped by South and a fourth club led. West discarded a diamond, hoping that his partner could win the trick. But East could not over-ruff dummy's eight of spades. South tossed his last club on the good diamond, and East, having ruffed with the five-spot, held this trick when West undertruffed. But a trump lead was allowed to run to West's jack, and West had to pitch a trump away from the king to give declarer his contract plus an overtrick.

The unsound idea that a any bid in a new suit is a forcing bid has given rise to a general feeling of uneasiness on the part of the player holding a hand like North's. He is afraid to bid two diamonds lest partner thinks he has a stronger hand.

In fact, the bid of a second suit should convey quite the opposite picture. A player who bids two suits is hinting that a considerable part of his count may be in distributional values rather than in high cards. How-
